Guest Speakers

Loreyse Agnew-Green
“What is a Professional Ecosystem?”

Loreyse is the Managing Director of The Corporations Professional Ecosystems Pty Ltd and is a K-6 educator and administrator. In her complex role, she determined a need for making the evidencing of professional learning as seamless as possible. Currency and acknowledgement of time spent by educators in self determined learning was not being captured. The shift in required knowledge and constant flexibility and change has challenged the capacity of educators to remain relevant in their roles. Thus began 3 years of “Genius Hour”, educorponline.com, a passion project with universal appeal.

Dr Stewart Hase
“At last, evidence based learning for the 21st century.”

Stewart is a consulting psychologist interested in helping individuals, groups and organisations to learn, change and to adapt. To this end he has been, variously, a therapist, academic, leadership coach, organisational consultant, presenter, workshop facilitator and writer. Stewart has presented workshops all around the world and published around 130 books, book chapters and articles in this area. These days he is best known for developing the concept of self-determined learning (heutagogy). This is an innovative approach to learning in the 21st century and is becoming increasingly popular in all fields of educational practice across the globe.

Kirryn Zerna
“How to thrive in turbulent times”

Kirryn is a speaker, social researcher and consultant. Known for her work in helping people and organisations thrive in turbulent times, Kirryn helps leaders and their people to become future fit. She draws on over a decade of communications, change and marketing experience — working across sectors within corporate, government, not-for-profits and small businesses.
